WEYMOUTH GAZETTE, EAST Weymouth News

Citizen,
BRAINTREE REPORTER.

CONSOLIDATED SEPTEMBER 27, 1892.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

WEYMOUTH PUBLISHING COMPANY,

WEYMOUTH, MASS.

TELEGRAMS: "EAST GAZETTE."

ADVERTISEMENTS Inserted at the usual rates.

MANAGERS AND EDITOR: A. W. BLANCHARD, M. F. HAWKES.

All reading notices in the news columns will be charged at the rate of 10 cents per line, except other prices are quoted for special departments, as follows: "Business Notices," 5 cents per line; "Entertainment Notices," 3 cents per line.

Correspondence and news of news are solicited from all readers of the Gazette. Every one knows of local interesting facts or happenings that others will be interested in.

While we have an efficient corps of regular contributors, there is much of interest than the nature of their work will permit us to publish. If you are a local paper and you wish to send us news, let us know and we will do our best to publish it.

While we have a weekly paper, we do not publish the paper which takes week after week for the good of the town and its people, should be able to every day by all good citizens.

FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1892.

Fast Day has been appointed by the Governor for Thursday, April 5.

Welcome, oh Sun! This was a day to day we had a beautiful sunny Friday. Since then, although the sun has favored us with a few glimpses of his face on several afternoons, we have not had a sunny forenoon or what could be termed fair day.

It seems to be a bad oversight on the part of the law in allowing the poll-tax legislation for state elections, that it does not apply to town or city elections. This would be necessary under the law as it is, and until it is revised, that there shall be two sets of voting lists, one for the voters qualified for state elections and the other for those only who are, as of old, paid a poll tax.

There are no towns of any considerable size and reputation in this state that have not fire alarm systems. Weymouth must have one, and there should. Shall we have one this year and there should, avert some terrible disaster by fire, or shall we sleep in a family security till the same come of itself? The remainder of ruined homes or destroyed histories, reminds us of our negligence.

All signs point to the impossibility of H.H.'s nomination for the presidency. The wily politician has overreached himself at last. Will the reaction in New England be strong enough to keep him from getting another all? This is the hope of "good democrats" everywhere. If the better elements in the party can beat H.H. and stimulate a severe rebuke to Tammany, it will be a victory for good policies even if the H.H. faction slanders Cleves at the polls and prevents his election.

March.

"But for the storm, not March day, There is nothing like them."

True enough. There can be no other weather so bad as the few days we have had of March this year. We are very glad there is nothing like them.

Hints for Tax Day.

Vote not on the house question. Go home promptly. In the afternoon and next day and your influence to reduce the gross amount of the appropriation to the lowest possible limit, consisted of the same amount of money, but it is much easier to get the wavers of the town in undue parsimony as in extravagance. Let us strive to attain the proper mean.

The Storm.

It is not necessary for us to inform our house readers in regard to the particulars of the storm of the past few days; they are all well known. The weather is still bad, but the benefit of our foreign relatives, of whom we have many—and they are always interested in Weymouth, is to be seen. We say that the stories of the "worst灾害" as to storms, blizzards and blockades were driven to the rear by the parade of the storm regulars the past three days.

The storm began on Tuesday and continued through Wednesday night. It was seen throughout the country, with a velocity of over 100 miles an hour. The schools throughout town were closed for two days and business generally was at a standstill.

The most unusual amount of snow and the effects of the sharp blizzards kept the streets pretty open to the travel of those whose duties forced them in the face of the blizzard. To sum it up in the fewest words, it was the heaviest storm for many years.

Druggist's License.

Should we not grant the Braintree license? This is a question upon which public opinion is now divided. Many good temperance men are found in the ranks of both sides advocating the policy of the other.

It would appear to most of us, however, that it is right to give to every legitimate druggist a license to sell medical property. Until it can be proven that no one of such men is a drunkard, we shall be bound to give him a license. Mr. Pratt, instead, and Mr. Weston, stoutly maintained that the law should be suspended, as to them, until a special committee, consisting of the most eminent physicians in the town, had made a report to the Legislature.

The committee of the most eminent physicians in the town, however, did not make a report to the Legislature, but the law was suspended.

Walter was the important witness in a lawsuit. One of the lawyers, after cross questioning him, said, "Well, Mr. Pratt, instead, and Mr. Weston, stoutly maintained that the law should be suspended, as to them, until a special committee, consisting of the most eminent physicians in the town, had made a report to the Legislature, but the law was suspended."

The committee was to meet again at the Town House on Thursday to complete its deliberations, but a quorum was not present.

The committee is to meet tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

In most instances when liquor is wanted medicinally it is wanted at once. Then what is to be done? Again, it is wanted usually from the drug store by those of our people who are financially unable to carry a stock of medicinal and mechanical alcohol and who are not in a position to afford the possibility of being satisfied without liquor at the needed moment. But shall we subject our poorer people to the expense and delay of going out to buy liquor when wanted in an emergency?

If the law is granted that liquor is at times necessary—and we are told that a very large per cent. of the prescriptions are for such cases—then we shall be compelled to keep up the practice of splitting—then it is not better to have it sold legally, under proper restrictions, than to educate our people in habits of deception and evasion of the law?

The events of the past estate, Judge White sitting in the case for Weymouth, May 1.

The Townsman.

At all times which occur in the news columns, we are to be sure to keep up the news of local interest in the town, the news of local paper and news in next door to it, so that we may be kept up to date with the news of the outside world.

While we have an efficient corps of regular contributors, there is much of interest than the nature of their work will permit us to publish. If you are a local paper and you wish to send us news, let us know and we will do our best to publish it.

At noon Sunday, an alarm was rung in the town of Weymouth, and the alarm was rung in Weymouth. Some fat on the stove caught fire, and in 20 minutes the entire town was in flames. Mr. Young, the engineer, had turned about the hands and face in attempting to extinguish the fire, and the fire was quickly put out. The direction of Engineer Wicknell, did much to put out the fire. The alarm was rung in the Abington company for 50 sec. Mr. Young's loss on farm was $1000. The alarm was rung in Weymouth for a great deal of delay in ringing in the alarm, and it being Sunday, a great many thought it was a mistake. The fire department deserves credit for its quick work in extinguishing the fire, and the alarm was rung in Weymouth for the fire alarm system, this proves that the town is in need of one.

Impure Blood.

Symptoms.—Impure blood is manifested by pimples, blisters, boils, carbuncles, eruptions, salt rheum, and inability of the system to throw off poisonous matters.

Impure blood greatly endangers the health, and, if permitted to remain in the body, passes from one stage of degeneration to another, until aches, pains, diseases, and prolonged sufferings are developed. The quickest and most thorough purifier of the blood is

MARGUERY'S LETTER.

BOSTON, Mar. 3, 1892.
I think the name of Mrs. Whitton-Stone will be unfamiliar to the readers of the Gazette, as I have mentioned her before in connection with the other poet members of the Press.

I have told you too, something about her graceful poetry, which has appeared from time to time in various magazines and of the charm which surrounds the woman herself. She is a lovely, gay, always happy, vivacious girl, but her hair is covered with a wealth of snowy white hair. She has the appearance of a grande dame and an air of dignity which might frighten the novice in society, were it not that she is a true and gentle soul, and a picture of manner which places one at ease immediately; while her conversation, always bright and witty, is an ever entertaining delight. I am pleased to tell you that Mrs. Whitton-Stone has just published a small volume of poems for her collection I believe, which will not fail to bring her added fame and a choice place in the affection as well as the admiration of her readers.

The book is called "Sonnets, Songs and Limericks" and is gotten up like Capples, in a tasteful manner, both in plain colors and in white and gold.

The dedication appeals to all hearts.

"To the living who have known

"How sweet were the joys of song,

"Whom I have loved, and whom I have lost,

"Those nights belong."

"To the holy sisters I have known,

"To the friends I have loved,

"To those who sleep with folded palms,

"In the portion of the book set apart for

"Romantic, very beautiful scenes to each

"In the year, while the flowers—some

"Are already set to music—almost "Along themselves. Some dear friend

"Is to be seen on the page—Lovers,

"Lovers, who sleep in a better land,

"While Mrs. Whitton-Stone seems to all "Intents and purposes a soothed woman,

"Who gives me time and space to have

"A higher and better state of existence

"Than any mere social life affords. I have been "A pleased listener in conversations and discussions on profound subjects, which

"One can be an able thinker, and an am"azing reader."

Mrs. Whitton-Stone is a member of the Woman's Press Association, the Huxley

Society, the New England Club, and I don't know how many others; but of each she is a member, and is a member of the Weymouth Club, and is a member of the Weymouth Library.

By the way, do you ever run into Capples

It's attractive white and gold entrance is a good indication of its interesting content.

The book is bound in blue silk cloth, green laid paper and contains a number of pictures which were not included in the other edition. Among these is one from the death mask which is more smiling and friendly than any photo. Capples had a lot of good, well-illustrated books, and handsome works. One of these is

As the penitential season of Lent comes

in, and the penitentes are supposed to

fast for a little, one looks back on the past winter as having been somewhat

unfortunate.

On account of the Court of England being placed in mourning garments, fashion decrees that black shall be the favorite color. You almost too bad that you should be the passing notice of Fashionable ladies, but it is. Then, too, you can't imagine any getting pleasure out of the last sentence in the dead; but I have had a few moments of pleasure.

A woman who died in a city boarding house and found time long heavy on her hands, as such women often do, devised a device with a friend which was unique to her. When they attend some of the large church funerals near by and take a pleasure ride to Mt. Adams in the process?

Now, when they get to the large economy clothing store, while in less expensive articles, though a thousand times more, are not the same.

A dozen of the prettiest leaders of the fashionable world have been called to make up the dress parade, while in less

expensive articles, though a thousand

times more, are not the same.

As the penitential season of Lent comes

in, and the penitentes are supposed to

fast for a little, one looks back on the

past winter as having been somewhat

unfortunate.

A woman who had been immediately

valued of her personal appearance, at the end of a long illness, when she was about to die, in the dress parade, dressed in

black, had a present, though

rather slow journey out to the cemetery, at a more rapid pace, and were left at a railroad station not far from their home, as the carriages were going down,

and when the carriages were gone, they

walked home, having enjoyed a good and somebody's expense. Horrible! the

only a queer phase of human nature.

While we are on funeral subjects, let me tell you a story, illustrating the fact that the author is strong in argument.

A woman who had been immediately

valued of her personal appearance, at the end

of a long illness, when she was about to

die, in the dress parade, dressed in

black, had a present, though

rather slow journey out to the cemetery,

at a more rapid pace, and were left at a railroad station not far from their home, as the carriages were going down,

and when the carriages were gone, they

walked home, having enjoyed a good

and somebody's expense. Horrible! the

only a queer phase of human nature.

Another fair was opened and treasury was filled with the money raised.

Indigestion, Dyspepsia

Symptoms.—Distress or oppression after eating, acid eruptive, flatulence, griping, acid, loss of appetite and strength, nausea, headache, pallor, dullness, complexion, depressed spirits, hideous dreams, and a multitude of other misteries too well known to the average America.

To us science has never given a remedy for this dressing disorder, but Nature has given to the untutored Indian a never-failing remedy. It is undeniable that Nature provides for every want of man and beast; and, through the noble Kickapoo tribe of Indians, she has given us a vegetable compound of herbs, roots, barks, and flowers, called

K. of P. Sal Moque.

To have taken in all the fairs, concerts, balls and other entertainments which have been given in Reynold's Hall during the past year, and the most popular and handsome bell and belli music which was given last Friday night would be like making a right and true tour of the American continent without seeing the falls of Niagara.

The committee having charge of the affairs were successful in arranging every detail, but the weather was decidedly against them, in fact it could hardly have been worse, yet hundred hundred the same night, the concert and the show partake in the grand parade of representatives of every people and age of the world's history.

The concert was a grand combination of the Indian, the Chinese, the African, which is itself a most excellent entertainment. The combination was, therefore, doubtless a most excellent treat. The quartette was in good form and gave some fine selections as well as the soloists. The soloists were excellent like those from Chicago. "When you know anything about the old folks, you know them well." The boys in the band and orchestra, and certain class have improved every one especially during this last snowfall. The Sunday (that day of all days when order should be preserved)
